

Guideline for Participation Fee

Microfinance Training of Trainers Course (MFTOT) has been conducted eight times over the past seven years, and approximately 1500 participants received online tutoring for 11 assignments and took part in the final exam. MFTOT is sponsored by the Asian Development Bank Institute (ADBI), China Development Bank (CDB) and the World Bank Tokyo Development Learning Center (TDLC). The revenue of participants fees are used to cover partially the operational costs.

To meet increasing demand in delivering high quality learning package, from MFTOT7, we introduced the new participation fee structure applying World Bank's analytical income categories (low, middle, high income) that are based on the Bank's operational lending categories (civil works preferences, IDA eligibility, IBRD eligibility, etc.). Course fee is US$300, however, participants from least developed countries and middle-income countries will receive $250 and $150 sponsorship respectively:

- US$50 for least developed countries (“IDA” or “Blend” category in the link)
- US$150 for middle-income countries (“IBRD” category except for “High-income economies”)
- US$300 for developed countries (all the other countries except for above)

Country classifications can be found at the following link or the annex attached:

<http://data.worldbank.org/about/country-classifications/country-and-lending-groups>

*Please select your (participant's) country based on your residence/location, not nationality.

The MFTOT program features a unique, blended approach consisting of:

1. Self-paced study using the Microfinance Distance Learning (MFDL) developed by the United Nations Capital Development Fund (UNCDF). The package is available also online at <http://www.jointokyo.org/mfdl>
-Participants will receive the learning package (textbook and CD-Rom).
2. Online tutoring and e-discussion. Tutors will assist participants throughout the course in completing course assignments by grading and providing feedback. Online discussions will be moderated by the team leader of tutors.
-Tutors will be assigned to each participant to oversee the progress and to answer his/her questions.
-Assignments and exam will be conducted. Once a participant has successfully completed, depending on the learning objectives, level of commitment and performance, he/she will acquire Completion/Accreditation Certificate.
-Participants will attend the forum to exchange their opinions.
3. Meeting with international microfinance experts through four 3-hour videoconference sessions at selected GDLN centers. The videoconference sessions will feature presentations and discussions on current issues and best practices in microfinance. The videoconferences will also be webcast live and archived in Moodle.
-Participants will be able to experience a live class-room style learning with lectures from renowned expert in microfinance.
4. Local activities in selected countries will be available during the same time period.
-Participants will have chance to attend the local courses of the DLCs in their countries.
5. After completion, participants will be given access to ‘International Community of Certified Trainers of MFTOT’ where you will have an opportunity to share views on microfinance related issues with all those who have graduated.

We look forward to your participation!
